5

ABSTRACT

A system for retailing music in a fueling environment includes a central server communicatively connected to a local server in the fueling environment. The central server downloads music for purchase to the local server. The local server communicates to fuel dispensers or music kiosks in the fueling environment. Consumers may purchase music from the music dispensers as part of a fueling transaction. The music is provided to the consumer wirelessly or through a portable data storage device.